

How to Find Food

Central Illinois Foodbank, through its network of agency partners, has limited home delivery of emergency boxes of non-perishable goods for individuals who are faced with COVID-19 related issues.

- In order to receive an emergency box, written/electronic verification of a presumed positive case of COVID-19, which requires quarantine of the household, must be provided.
- Individuals who have been tested and quarantined until results are received, and have a written/electronic verification of the testing will also be eligible.
- Individuals who live alone and have a written/electronic verification from their doctor, that they should not leave their home may also be eligible for home delivery.

In any case, the Foodbank must receive written/electronic verification before home delivery will be scheduled. Please note that same day delivery cannot be guaranteed.
